IT'S MY GREAT PLEASURE TO

offer greetings and the very best of luck on behalf of Curling Canada's Board of Governors to everyone competing in the 2022 Scotties Tournament of Hearts in Thunder Bay.

I'm particularly proud that, once again, under difficult circumstances, the Canadian curling community has pulled together to ensure that this championship happens in a safe, responsible manner.

Our partnership with Kruger Products is like none other in Canadian sports, exceeding four decades. The Scotties brand and that wonderful four-hearts logo are synonymous with women's curling in this country. We're truly grateful for this enduring partnership and look forward to many more years of working together.

To our volunteers, our Organizing Committee, the local event staff and Curling Canada's national staff — I can't say enough good things about your dedication and your passion.

The support of the families and employers of the athletes and coaches also need to be acknowledged. My thanks to all of you.

And to the athletes and coaches: we all share the same hope — that we will be returning to normal in the near future, and that for now, you enjoy and cherish the memories you make this year in Thunder Bay.

Amy Nixon

IL ME FAIT GRAND PLAISIR, AU NOM DU CONSEIL DES

gouverneurs de Curling Canada, de souhaiter la bienvenue et la meilleure des chances à toutes les personnes en compétition au Tournoi des Cœurs Scotties 2022 à Thunder Bay.

Je suis particulièrement fière qu'une fois de plus, malgré des circonstances difficiles, la communauté canadienne du curling se soit serrée les coudes pour s'assurer que ce championnat se déroule de manière sécuritaire et responsable.

Notre partenariat avec Produits Kruger, vieux de plus de quatre décennies, est unique dans le sport canadien. La marque Scotties et ce magnifique logo à quatre cœurs sont synonymes de curling féminin dans ce pays. Nous sommes vraiment reconnaissants de ce partenariat durable et sommes impatients de poursuivre cette collaboration pendant de nombreuses années.

À nos bénévoles, notre comité d'organisation, le personnel d'événement local et le personnel national de Curling Canada: les mots me manquent pour décrire votre dévouement et votre passion.

Le soutien des familles et des employeurs des athlètes et des entraîneurs en compétition ici cette semaine doit également être souligné. Mes remerciements à vous tous.

Enfin, aux athlètes et entraîneurs : nous partageons tous le même espoir — que nous reviendrons à la normale dans un proche avenir, et que pour l'instant, vous appréciez et chérissez les souvenirs que vous créez cette année à Thunder Bay.

GREETINGS FROM THE HOST COMMITTEE SALUTATIONS DU COMITÉ HÔTE

WELCOME CURLERS TO THUNDER BAY AND THE

host site of the 2022 Scotties Tournament of Hearts. It has been 26 years since we hosted our very first Scotties back in 1996, and we are so pleased to once again welcome the top women curlers from throughout Canada back to the head of Lake Superior.

None of this would have been possible without the financial support of the Thunder Bay Community Economic Development Commission (CEDC) who jumped on board with our local organizing committee to get behind the bid to host this great event. We would also like to extend our thanks to the City of Thunder Bay and the Province of Ontario for their efforts in upgrading the Fort William Gardens for this event which, sadly, will be played without spectators due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Thunder Bay is often referred to as the Centre of Curling in Canada and for good reason. We have enjoyed a rich and proud curling history which has included the winning of multiple national and world curling titles, and the hosting of a number of top-notch curling events. That tradition of excellence continues with the hosting of the 2022 Scotties.

This event is a true example of a curling partnership with the Fort William, Kakabeka Falls and Port Arthur curling clubs all working together to make this dream a reality. Thank you to the members of all three clubs for your support.

We must also give a special shout out to our incredible volunteers who truly are the backbone of our curling community. We are very grateful to this incredible group who are bringing their enthusiasm and expertise to the 2022 Scotties. To say that we could not do it without them would be an understatement.

We would also like to thank Curling Canada for putting their trust in us to host this event, and to their outstanding staff who have helped us navigate through an unprecedented planning process which has, to say the least, been far from typical.

Through all of the twist and turns which have taken place over the past couple of years one thing has remained constant, the desire on behalf of our host committee, and all of our partners, to make the 2022 Scotties the best that they can be in these trying circumstances.

We hope the curlers enjoy their time in Thunder Bay and that the 2022 Scotties provides them with some great memories to last a lifetime.

VICE CHAIRS 2022 SCOTTIES TOURNAMENT OF HEARTS John Cameron, Hosting Diane Imrie, Special Events and Volunteers Rick Lang, Hosting Kent Maarup, Facilities

site hôte du Tournoi des Cœurs Scotties 2022. C'est en 1996, il y a 26 ans, que nous avons tenu nos tout premiers Scotties et nous sommes très heureux d'accueillir encore une fois, à la tête du lac Supérieur, les meilleures joueuses de curling de partout au Canada.

Rien n'aurait été possible sans le soutien financier de la Community Economic Development Commission (CEDC) de Thunder Bay, qui s'est associée à notre comité organisateur local, afin d'appuyer la soumission pour présenter ce grand événement. Nous tenons également à remercier la ville de Thunder Bay et la province de l'Ontario, de leurs efforts de modernisation du Fort William Gardens en vue de cet événement qui, malheureusement, se déroulera sans la présence de spectateurs en raison des restrictions liées à la COVID-19.

Thunder Bay est souvent appelé le centre du curling au Canada et pour une bonne raison. Notre riche et fier historique de curling comprend la victoire de plusieurs titres nationaux et mondiaux de curling et l'organisation de nombreux événements de curling de premier ordre. L'accueil des Scotties 2022 poursuit cette tradition d'excellence.

Cet événement est un véritable exemple de partenariat de curling avec les clubs de curling de Fort William, Kakabeka Falls et Port Arthur, collaborant pour faire de ce rêve une réalité. Merci de leur soutien aux membres des trois clubs.

Nous devons également remercier tout particulièrement nos incroyables bénévoles, qui sont vraiment le fer de lance de notre communauté de curling. Nous sommes très reconnaissants à ce groupe incroyable, qui partage son enthousiasme et son expertise aux Scotties 2022. Affirmer que nous ne pourrions réussir sans eux serait le moins que l'on puisse dire.

Nous tenons également à remercier Curling Canada de nous avoir fait confiance pour l'accueil de cet événement et son personnel exceptionnel, qui nous a aidés à naviguer dans un processus de planification sans précédent et loin, pour le moins, d'être typique.

Malgré tous les hauts et les bas au cours des deux dernières années, une chose est restée constante, le désir de notre comité hôte et de tous nos partenaires de faire des Scotties 2022 le meilleur événement possible, dans ces circonstances éprouvantes.

Nous espérons que les curleuses aimeront leur séjour à Thunder Bay et que les Scotties 2022 leur procureront de bons souvenirs inoubliables.

Premier Partner of the 2022 Scotties Tournament of Hearts

SCOTTIES TOURNAMENT OF HEARTS

Markin MacPhail Centre) Calgary, Alberta) February 19 to 28, 2021

Winning the Scotties Tournament of Hearts once is tough enough. Try doing it back-to-back. But that's exactly what Kerri Einarson and her team from Gimli, Man., did, knocking off Ontario's Rachel Homan 9-7 in a nail-biting final. The joyous champs (left to right): skip Kerri Einarson, third Val Sweeting, second Shannon Birchard and lead Briane Meilleur.

Kerri Einarson looked up into the stands after winning her second straight Scotties Tournament of Hearts title. Her loved ones, including twin daughters Khloe and Kamryn, weren't sitting in the front row waiting for a visit from mom, as they usually do.

She gazed above the horizon of the silent cardboard crowd to the jumbo screen. There, she saw family and friends the way everyone had grown accustomed to seeing them over the past year of the COVID-19 pandemic — virtually on a screen, on the other side of a Zoom call.

That was one of the many peculiarities of hosting a national curling event inside a bio-secure "bubble" at WinSport Arena in Canada's Olympic Park at Calgary. It was the first bubble event of its kind in the world of curling and set the stage for a memorable season of curling during a pandemic.

But for all of the abnormalities of the 2021 Scotties Tournament of Hearts, there was a sense of familiarity during the gold-medal game; a 2020 re-match between defending champion Einarson, representing Canada, and Ontario's Rachel Homan.

The Einarson vs. Homan re-match marked the first time in Scotties history that two teams have met in back-to-back finals and promised to become another classic once again. And, just like the previous year, Einarson, vice-skip Val Sweeting, second Shannon Birchard and lead Briane Meilleur of the Gimli Curling Club in Manitoba defeated Homan, this time 9-7, to win backto-back championships. Alternate Krysten Karwacki and coach Heather Nedohin round out the team.

"It means the absolute world to be able to repeat," said Einarson, who was named the 2021 winner of the Sandra Schmirler Playoff Most Valuable Player Award. "It's hard to do and hasn't been done since 2014 (by Homan). So to do it again, playing against all these amazing

Trailing by a bunch after seven ends, Ontario's Rachel Homan made a game of it down the stretch, but in the end fell just short in the final against Team Canada.

teams, is really hard. I'm just so proud and honoured to be able to wear the Maple Leaf again."

Homan, vice-skip Emma Miskew, second Sarah Wilkes, lead Joanne Courtney, alternate Danielle Inglis and coach Randy Ferbey managed a near comeback attempt by stealing two in the ninth end to tie the game after Einarson missed a raise-takeout attempt. However, in the 10th, Homan missed a freeze attempt, and Einarson didn't need to throw her last rock for the win.

An unusual year brought a different format to the Scotties Tournament of Hearts in 2021. Rather than the standard 16 teams at the event, the field was expanded to 18 teams for the first time, accommodating for teams that had no chance to qualify through their respective Member Association championships that were cancelled due to the pandemic.

All 14 Member Associations sent teams, and the field was rounded out by the defending champion Team Canada, skipped by Einarson, and three Wild Card teams based on their performance in the 2019-20 Canadian Team Ranking System.

The new format led to the debuts of two teams from Manitoba: 2020 world junior champion Mackenzie Zacharias and a team skipped by Beth Peterson.

Curling Canada changed the playoff format to a three-team playoff, with the top team advancing directly to the final in place of the traditional Page playoff system. The change was to account for the additional round-robin games played.

Homan's silver-medal finish will remain one of the most memorable achievements in Scotties history. She nearly led her team to a Canadian women's curling championship while eight months pregnant. Homan and Einarson finished the Championship Pool tied with 10 wins and two losses each, with Homan claiming the top seed due to their head-to-head record.

"They played really well, and again it went down to the last rock," said Homan. "That's the way curling goes sometimes. But really proud of my team in this first little bonspiel together. I'm really proud of these girls for battling through all week."

Val Sweeting was a key member of the championship team.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic in Canada, Curling Canada opted to include three wild card teams instead of the usual one. These teams qualified based on their performance in the 2019-20 Canadian Team Ranking System.

Top four teams in each pool advanced to the championship round carrying their full win-loss records forward.

If there were an award for the mostimproved team at the Scotties Tournament of Hearts, Alberta's Laura Walker's bronzemedallist team from Edmonton would have claimed it. Walker's team missed out on the Championship Pool in 2020. But in 2021, Walker elevated her game to earn bronze, defeating Manitoba's Jennifer Jones 9-8 in a tiebreaker game to advance to the semifinal. At that point, Canada's Einarson defeated Walker 9-3 in the semifinal and advance to the final against Homan.

After missing out on the right to represent Canada due to the cancelled 2020 world women's event in Prince George, B.C., Team Einarson got its chance at the 2021 LGT World Women's Curling Championship, presented by BKT Tires, in Calgary. After a slow start, Canada made a memorable run to the playoffs and qualified Canada for the women's event at the 2022 Olympic Winter Games in Beijing.

It was an outstanding week for Team Canada's Kerri Einarson. Not only did she win the Scotties Tournament of Hearts for the second year in a row, she was also named the most outstanding player in the playoffs.

MARJ MITCHELL AWARD

Quebec skip Laurie St-Georges won the Marj Mitchell Award for best embodying the spirit of curling at the 2021 Scotties Tournament of Hearts. The award is named in memory of Marj Mitchell, who skipped Canada to its first world title in 1980. In 1983, shortly after the second Hearts, Mitchell died of cancer at the age of 35. The winner is selected each year in a vote by all players at the tournament.

JOAN MEAD BUILDER AWARD

The 2021 Builder Award was awarded to Calgary's Shannon Kleibrink, who won bronze for Canada at the 2006 Winter Olympics. She also has been an active coach in the Calgary area, as well as overseas. Kleibrink won the Ray Kingsmith award in 2014, signifying outstanding contributions to women's curling. Kleibrink was a vice-chair of the 2015 Tim Hortons Brier and 2015 Continental Cup in Calgary. The award is presented in the name of the late CBC-TV producer Joan Mead, who died suddenly of a heart attack in January 2000.

SANDRA SCHMIRLER AWARD

Presented in the name of the late Sandra Schmirler, the MVP award was presented to Team Canada skip Kerri Einarson after she was chosen the most outstanding player in the 2021 Scotties Tournament of Hearts playoffs. It was the second year in a row that Einarson was named MVP in the playoffs.

Quebec's Laurie St-Georges turned a few heads for her curling ability and sportsmanship on the ice, making her a popular winner of the Marj Mitchell Award.

Olympian, coach, administrator and volunteer, Calgary's Shannon Kleibrink has done it all in curling, and her Joan Mead Builder Award was well deserved.

Always have the hammer.

OUEEN of their HEARTS

Move over Al Hackner, because in Thunder Bay, Heather Houston is curling royalty, too BY PERRY LEFKO SN BROADCASTER VIC RAUTER ONCE said if you mention the name 'Heather' in the Thunder Bay curling community everyone will know exactly who you're talking about — Heather Houston.

"I live in Al Hackner country, come on," Houston says with a laugh. "If we had won that third one, it might be a different story."

Heather Houston might sell herself short, but she put the Northern Ontario city on the women's curling map in the late 1980s with two Canadian titles and one world championship, which placed her in rather lofty company, right alongside legendary Thunder Bay curler Al Hackner and his two national and global crowns.

Houston and vice-skip Lorraine Lang, second Diane Adams and lead Tracy Kennedy qualified for the Scott Tournament of Hearts for the first time in 1988, and the newly-minted squad with its first-year skip made quite an impression at

In addition to her contributions on the ice, Heather Houston has also used her great graphic arts talents to design items for the Fort William Curling Club, including its logo and a photo mural that welcomes people to the club at the front door.

Tou to the photographers who have captured the determination, talent and joy of the curlers showcased in this welcome to the curling the second starting our rich curling heritage. Heather Houston, left, and her teammates were a force in women's curling, winning backto-back Canadian women's titles in 1988 and 1989. They added a world title in 1989. Their first Scotties title came in Fredericton, N.B., and pictured, next to Houston with the trophy are, left to right, third Lorraine Lang, second Diane Adams, lead Tracy Kennedy and alternate Gloria Taylor.

the Aitken Centre in Fredericton, N.B, surviving two tiebreakers before reaching the final vs. Pat Sanders and her Team Canada foursome.

The championship match was tied 5-5 entering the 10th end and, with her final stone, Houston chose to play a come-around draw to the corner eight-foot behind a guard, a few feet in front of the rings. It was a career-defining pressure shot.

"I had a ton of confidence in Heather, absolutely," Lang says. "We dodged a lot of bullets (in that tournament) and Heather had to make a lot of clutch shots. For skips that win championships it's rare that nerves get the best of them. They are actually pretty calm throwing those shots. I was feeling nervous for her, not me, and I think that's a normal thing when you are holding the broom for the last shot, but I was very confident the right person was throwing it."

"I don't remember being nervous or thinking anything except, 'Let's hit the broom,' " is how Houston remembers it.

Houston's stone landed just a tad exposed, but, rather than play the hit, Sanders elected to draw and her shot ended up in the back 12-foot, giving Houston and her teammates the win.

"I just didn't believe it could possibly happen," Houston says. "I don't really think you have any idea that it might. Maybe if we overthought everything, we wouldn't have been able to figure out how to manage adrenaline."

Team Houston went on to the world tournament in Glasgow, Scotland, an event Canada had won the previous four years.

"There were all kinds of weird things that we didn't know how to deal with," Houston recalls in reference to different rules and playing abroad. "We did a pretty good job of most things. Obviously the crowd was not in your corner."

They were beaten in the final, 9-3, by Germany's Andrea Schopp, twice a runner-up.

"They had that comfort level at the world championships having been there before that we couldn't really apply for our team," Houston says. "We played well, but we just didn't get anything going and they legitimately won. We felt very strongly we could do better, but the sun still comes up the next day, no matter what happens. Still to this day I say, 'I'm a silver medallist.' I don't ever say I lost a world championship."

Wearing Team Canada colours at the 1989 Scotties in Kelowna, B.C., Houston and Co. became the first team to capture back-to-back Canadian women's titles since Vera Pezer of Saskatchewan won three in a row from 1971-73. And, this time, they did it without last-rock dramatics, beating Chris More of Manitoba 11-5 in the final.

They returned to the world championship, in Milwaukee, Wisc., and there were no "weird things" to deal with this time around. They finished second in the round-robin, bested Schopp in the semifinal, then took the measure of Norway's Trine Trulsen in the title match.

"There was a fair amount of relief involved," Houston says. "We knew our competitors and we knew what was on the line. You didn't want to be a back-to-back silver medallist."

Houston was subsequently voted winner of the Velma Springsted Trophy, awarded until 2012 to Canada's outstanding female athlete. She's the only curler to win it.

After having lost the 1988 World final, Heather Houston's Canadian team defeated Norway in the 1989 final in Milwaukee, Wis., to claim Canada's sixth women's world championship gold medal. Left to right, skip Heather Houston, third Lorraine Lang, second Diane Adams, and lead Tracy Kennedy.

"I love club curling, I'm a club curler. I could have happily been a club curler my whole life. I love knowing everybody at the curling club. I love being part of a curling club. I like just sitting around having a coffee. We have a lot of fun at the club."

"That's always been an award I struggle with because why would a person on a four-person team get that award?" wonders Houston, whose squad was anointed Ontario Team of the Year.

The women were back at the Scotties the following two years (with Diane Pushkar at lead in 1991), but fell short in a bid for a third national championship.

Houston continued to curl, but never returned to the Scotties.

"I just got a little weary after '91, and I took '93 off because my dad was sick and passed away, and that made a big difference to me," she says. "Winning just got a little too important to me, even though intellectually I understood it's not about the winning. It's about enjoying what you do, trying to be better than you were yesterday, or being the best you can be today, and learn and grow with the game. It has to be fun and it just wasn't fun anymore. I was playing, but wasn't playing at the level I needed to be playing at."

In 1994, Houston's championship team from the late 1980s was voted into the Canadian Curling Hall of Fame, and she put together a squad in 1996 that was chosen to play in a televised TSN women's Skins Game format in Thunder Bay. The other outfits were skipped by then-world champion Marilyn Bodogh, two-time Canadian champion Sandra Schmirler and three-time champion Connie Laliberte.

Houston beat Schmirler in the final.

"It was huge for so many reasons," she says. "It was fun because we played well, and it was a big win for us money-wise; enough that I could put a down payment on a house that I would have never had without that. It made a big difference for me. We weren't the best bonspiel team."

Houston retired from competitive curling a few years later, but still maintains an interest in the game at the club level.

"I love club curling, I'm a club curler," she says. "I could have happily been a club curler my whole life. I love knowing everybody at the curling club. I love being part of a curling club. I like just sitting around having a coffee. We have a lot of fun at the club."

Houston will be a volunteer at the 2022 Scotties in Thunder Bay, providing information services and design/decoration work, although her role will be diminished because there will be no spectators in the building due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"It's been a long time," she says. "I think I still have (recognition in Thunder Bay), but I don't think I'm as popular as Connie is in Winnipeg or Sandra is in Regina."

Just don't tell that to curling enthusiasts in Thunder Bay, because they'll tell you she's queen of their hearts.

Perry Lefko is a freelance writer based in Mississauga and wrote the book Sandra Schmirler, The Queen Of Curling, and helped Colleen Jones write her autobiography, Throwing Rocks At Houses.

Al Hackner, otherwise known as the Iceman, is a curling legend in Thunder Bay, but he has to share top billing in the city with Heather Houston.

Role models step up to the plate to promote Indigenous participation in our great winter sport

ERRI EINARSON IS A FIERCELY PROUD Canadian who doesn't take for granted the opportunities she's had to pull on the red-andwhite jersey emblazoned with the Maple Leaf during her curling career.

Similarly, she beams with pride when talking to others about her Métis heritage.

"My dad (Jeff Flett) is Métis, but it wasn't something that we dove too deeply into when we were growing up," says Einarson, the mother of twin daughters, Kamryn and Khloe. "It's something that's really important to me now, especially as we raise our kids.

"It's something we're working on now, figuring out our family tree. It's an interesting story but we're just getting started, and it's something I want to keep working at because it's who I am and where I came from."

Geographically, Einarson is from Camp Morton, Man., a hamlet tucked away on the western shore of Lake Winnipeg, about an hour's drive due north of the Manitoba capital and just a whisper away from the Gimli Curling Club, home base of her two-time national women's championship team.

BY JASON

The team was assembled after the 2017-18 competitive season, with Einarson luring accomplished skip Val Sweeting from the Edmonton area to join her as vice, and convincing a pair of talented, up-and-coming players, Shannon Birchard and Briane Meilleur, to partner on the front end at second and lead, respectively.

Success was not long in arriving for Einarson and partners, who step on the pebble Jan. 28-Feb. 6 at Fort Williams Gardens in Thunder Bay, Ont., looking for a Scotties Tournament of Hearts three-peat.

The squad won the Manitoba title in its second season together, earning the opportunity to compete at the 2020 national Scotties in Moose Jaw, Sask. Remarkably, the fabulous foursome defeated Rachel Homan of Ottawa in the final. Unfortunately, the global COVID-19 pandemic forced cancellation of the LGT World Women's Championship, slated for Prince George, B.C., in mid-March 2020.

Much like most of the country's top teams, Einarson played sparingly during the 2020-21 season, but she had the good fortune of welcoming a new sponsor — the Manitoba Métis Federation.

The MMF promotes the history and culture of the Métis people, while protecting their political, social and economic interests, and MMF leadership is helping fund some of the Einarson team's athletic endeavours, while offering more.

"I've learned so much from David Chartrand (MMF president) about the Métis heritage. He's an amazing man," says Einarson, whose crew successfully defended its Scotties title inside the Calgary bubble in late February 2021 and, two months later, finally donned Team Canada jerseys at the world championship and finished top-six to secure an Olympic birth for a grateful nation.

"I think we're all on a path to learn as much as we can about ourselves, and one thing that's really important to me is being a role model, for other Indigenous to be able to look up to me, youth of all backgrounds, and see that a small-town girl like me can reach her dreams."

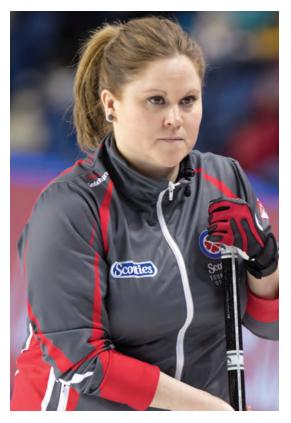

Toward that end, Einarson says plans are in the works for her team to participate in clinics for Indigenous kids, which is no surprise given that earlier this year she was the female recipient of the Tom Longboat Award as top Indigenous athlete in the country. Longboat, born in the Six Nations community of Ohsweken in Ontario, won the 1907 Boston Marathon and represented Canada at the Summer Olympics the following year.

Curling Canada chief executive officer Katherine Henderson appreciates and applauds Team Einarson's readiness to give back to the community and set an incredible example for others. It's those values that resonate within the organization, helping build bridges in an effort to promote Indigenous participation in the great winter sport.

"There are groups that haven't had a hand placed on its shoulders and guided it to our curling clubs, and that's become part of our focus," says Henderson. "We have to ensure we're doing all the right things to be inclusive. If you take a look at our junior level, it is starting to really represent the face of Canada.

"A lot of that has to do with the Rocks & Rings program, which we support, and has introduced the game to Curling Canada chief executive officer Katherine Henderson says the work of Indigenous role models is setting an incredible example for others and will help build bridges in an effort to promote Indigenous participation in curling.

Bottom left: Kerry Galusha is a 17-time Scotties competitor who has spent much of her time learning about her Indigenous ancestry and cultural practices.

Bottom right: Two-time Canadian women's champion Kerri Einarson of Gimli, Man., beams with pride when she talks about her Métis heritage.

Indigenous designers helped produce Team Canada's uniforms for the 2022 Winter and Paralympic Games in Beijing. The uniforms feature the work of Anishinaabe artist Patrick Hunter who created motifs drawn from his home territory and culture. more than two million children the last five years. We've gotten better at targeting schools within our inner cities. These days, we have to be much more intentional with our programs."

Henderson says Curling Canada has been partnering with Indigenous groups to work toward common interests of fitness, inclusion, respect and, above all, reconciliation.

"We recognize the land we stand on, we play on, is the land of Indigenous ancestors," she says. "It's not only important in the curling community but in all communities, that we recognize the importance of the role that Indigenous people have played in our communities. These groups are helping teach us how to deliver curling events in a way that is respectful and in the spirit of reconciliation."

In late November, Curling Canada made a commitment to open the Tim Hortons Canadian Olympic Trials in Saskatoon by acknowledging the territorial protocols of Treaty 6 Territory. There was a blanket ceremony after the grand entry, and Tribal Chief Mark Arcand presented each curling team with a star blanket as a gift and welcomed them to Treaty 6 Territory.

"In the spirit of truth and reconciliation, we thank you for allowing us to share our songs and culture with you. That's what reconciliation is, and we have to do it together," Arcand said at the time.

Patty Wallingham watched from her home in Whitehorse and was incredibly moved by the ceremony. The 28-year-old curler, a citizen of the First Nation of Na-Cho Nyäk Dun in the central Yukon community of Mayo, is proud of the work being done by Curling Canada and championship host committees to respect and honour the traditional territory of Indigenous peoples.

"We will be visitors and, as visitors, it is polite and respectful to recognize where you are," says Wallingham, who competed in three national Scotties championships wearing Yukon colours. "In my own experience, curling has taken me to many towns and cities across Canada that I probably wouldn't have otherwise visited. This experience is so unique as it is, and we can take the opportunity to recognize the Traditional Territories while they are so graciously hosting our sport.

"It's important to me to continue to participate in the sport that I love so much and know that our governing body is doing its small part in the steps toward truth and reconciliation as a country."

Wallingham was just 20 when she played for Sarah Koltun's team in the 2014 Montreal Scotties, perhaps remembered most for the flu bug that ran roughshod over the field. That year, plucky Team Yukon won the hearts of fans at Maurice Richard Arena, posting victories over Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan.

"We had to play with three players a couple of times and we nearly won," she remembers. "Players were running off the ice to throw up and then get back in the game. My grandma got sick and my mom got sick. But the Quebec fans were so good to us. There were Yukon flags in the gallery and people were cheering for us every time we made a shot."

Wallingham, who ran unsuccessfully for the NDP in the Yukon's largest riding, Mayo-Tatchun, during the last federal election, hadn't embraced "her Indigenous side" until approached by the Indigenous Student Council at Douglas College in New Westminster, B.C.

"That's when I truly embraced my culture and started to reconnect," says Wallingham. "I had this desire to study about First Nations, particularly language (Tutchone). Even now, I'm still trying to learn one new word every day."

Kerry Galusha is a 17-time Scotties competitor who has spent much of her life learning about her Indigenous ancestry and cultural practices. Her father, Fred Koe, is a member of the Gwich'In First Nation in the Northwest Territories, and her brothers Kevin and Jamie, both well-known curlers, grew up hearing stories about traditional ways.

Fred, who doesn't speak much about his time at a residential school, had been taken from his family in the remote northern community of Aklavik and relocated 120 kilometres away in Inuvik, where he survived a 10-month stay.

"Our family, like so many others, has been hugely impacted by the residential schools and what happened there," Galusha says. "I'm trying to be that voice for him, trying to educate people and be as open as I can."

In October, Kerry and daughter Sydney attended a National Day of Truth and Reconciliation sacred fire at Somba K'e park, honouring the children and families impacted by the residential school system and remembering those who were lost.

Galusha's name is synonymous with the Scotties and she's a huge fan favourite, coming ever so close to qualifying for the playoffs numerous times. But she's also a tireless supporter of curling at the grassroots level. "I coach a lot of kids at our club; they're the ones who keep me going," she says. "They keep me motivated, and I try to be a role model. I've talked with Colin Hodgson (a Métis curler from Manitoba) about ways to get more Indigenous kids involved in the sport and he has some really interesting ideas."

Hodgson is part-owner of the sports apparel company Dynasty, which worked with Indigenous designers to produce Team Canada's jerseys for the 2022 Winter and Paralympic Games in Beijing.

The uniforms feature the work of Anishinaabe artist Patrick Hunter, originally from Red Lake, Ont., where Hodgson now resides. Hunter created motifs drawn from his home territory and culture, and Winnipeg designer Kevin Hurrie ensured the images would shine within the uniforms' iconic red-white-and-black colour scheme.

"It was very special to me to be able to collaborate with two very talented artists," says Hodgson, who has partnered with Brandon's Faron Asham to run Dynasty since 2015. "Kevin and Patrick were both very passionate about sharing their work with people from all over the world and getting these uniforms right. We needed to work with a lot of different people, collaborating to represent the beautiful Indigenous culture in our country.

"Reconciliation is about working together and understanding how we can move forward in a positive direction for everyone. These uniforms are about love, sharing and moving forward."

ON THE ROCKS

BY AL CAMERON

IN THE ROLE OF A COMMUNICATIONS DIRECTOR,

there is no shortage of questions that arrive in an email inbox on a daily basis.

These questions run the gamut — from media members, from curlers, from fans, even pin collectors from far-flung places on the planet.

But there is one question — actually, make that two questions — asked more than others:

When is it on TV?

Why isn't it on TV?

There is a school of thought that all strategic planning when it comes to the sport of curling can be boiled down to one simple premise if you want to keep everybody happy put it on TV.

Of course, it's nowhere near that simple, but it would sure end a lot of the emails!

Many of those emails, honestly, come from a place of sheer fandom, and even when there's an angry tone to them, one can only appreciate that there is a passion for this great sport of ours, and you can't argue with the premise that fans simply want to be able to watch more curling on television.

But there are a couple things at work here, and fans need to understand that it's not just as simple as flicking a switch and, voila! The game is now on TV!

For instance, a common question during events such as this week's Scotties Tournament of Hearts is why more than one sheet isn't being televised.

You may remember TSN actually experimented with a two-sheet broadcast using separate channels a few years ago. In the end, the numbers simply didn't add up. All it did was split the existing audience, as oppose to adding viewers. That combined with the staggering costs of having two production trucks on hand, and two full crews, put an end to that concept.

Which brings up another reason there's not more curling on television — it costs money! Lots of it! Hundreds of thousands of dollars PER EVENT!

It's worth reminding curling fans that television companies, such as our longtime partners at TSN, as well as Rogers Sportsnet, which owns and operates the Grand Slam series of events, are not registered charities. They have board members, shareholders and sponsors to answer to. If there were money to be made from broadcasting more curling, they absolutely would broadcast more curling.

That said, when you consider the sheer amount of curling broadcast hours on traditional television, and compare it to all other sports, curling fans are amazingly well-served. The CFL, figure skating, tennis, soccer - all of them trail curling in terms of annual broadcast hours.

And then when you add in the exponential growth of streaming coverage of curling — World Curling Tour events, overseas events produced by the World Curling Federation and Curling Canada's own production of streaming broadcasts of events such as the Everest Canadian Seniors, Everest Canadian Club Championships, the Canadian Mixed Championship, the Canadian Under-21 and Under-18 Championships, among others — and curling fans have more options than ever before to enjoy their favourite sport.

Sharing this information won't, of course, stop the questions and complaints, and that's OK. As noted previously, they are expressions of passion for the sport and an eagerness to watch.

But always keep a few nuggets of information in the back of your mind before you send a future email.

Ask yourself what, say, bowling fans think about how much television exposure THEIR sport gets. Or badminton. Or speed skating. Or snowboarding. Pick a sport. Just about any sport. They would LOVE to get the kind of exposure curling gets.

Also remember the people behind the scenes who work passionately to bring you the TV coverage. You hear the voices of Vic Rauter, Cheryl Bernard, Russ Howard, Cathy Gauthier and Bryan Mudryk on TSN. Think about the 40 or 50 people who are working at the same time to make that broadcast happen and look so seamless. Dino Bavaro up in the booth, feeding facts and figures to the broadcasters. Leigh Buttery on the ice surface, giving time signals to officials and curlers. Len Dubyts, always parked somewhere high in the building, manipulating those amazing overhead shots with a joystick. Mike Cleasby coordinating the sound, making sure the remote microphone packs the players are wearing are functioning correctly. Brie-Anne Robertson (a former Northwest Territories junior champ, by the way) in the truck, pushing buttons seamlessly to give you amazing pictures from the various cameras in the arena.

They all have something in common. They love the sport the same way you do. Long days, long nights, but it's worth it for them. Because they know how much you appreciate it.

Keep that in mind as you watch the rest of the 2021-22 curling season..

THEY WORE KILLER KILTS

It was the kilts versus the bulky pants in the final of the 1996 Scotties Tournament of Hearts in Thunder Bay.

BY BOB WEEKS

Ontario's Bodogh gave Thunder Bay fans a curling and fashion show in dominating 1996 Scotties victory

HE LAST TIME CANADA'S top curlers congregated at Fort William Gardens in Thunder Bay, Ont., they had something other than ice, stones and opponents to deal with.

They also had snow. A lot of it. In the days before the gathering of the curling clans in 1996, the Lakehead was walloped by several storms that left the city buried in drifts. Getting in and out of town took some patience, and even walking around the city required a measure of caution. Snow banks blocked the view of the street from the sidewalk, meaning pedestrians had to peer around the corner of the wall of snow before stepping into the street. However that didn't stop the lineup of provincial champions from battling it out for a Canadian championship.

The field was deep with experience. Team Canada was skipped by Connie Laliberte, who'd won her third Scotties title a year earlier in Calgary. Colleen Jones was making her 11th visit to the national championship, looking for her fourth crown. Manitoba's Maureen Bonar, who lost the final to Sandra Schmirler three years earlier, was back for a third time

It was the home-province team, however, that attracted the most attention. A decade after winning the Scotties, Marilyn Bodogh returned to the national stage with a new team of young dynamos. Third Kim Gellard and second Corie Beveridge were Canadian and world junior champions, and Jane Hooper-Perroud had been a highly rated lead on several top teams. Right from the first practice, it seemed this team was destined for great things.

Inset: Skip Marilyn Bodogh and third Kim Gellard formed a terrific one-two punch at the back end for the team from Ontario, which rolled through the round-robin and then took control in the final against Alberta. Bottom: The Lakehead was walloped by several snow storms prior to the Scotties that left the city buried in drifts. Snow banks blocked the veiw of streets and walking around the city required great caution.

"Our first team practice was at Unionville Curling Club," recalled Bodogh. "I was holding the broom and Mary (Gellard, the team's coach) was behind me. When the girls started throwing rocks I turned to Mary and said 'We're going to win the Canadian and world championship.' I saw the talent, the hunger and their deliveries were like arrows, they were so smooth."

The foursome had a tremendous competitive season and rolled into the Ontario playdowns where they knocked off 1990 Canadian and world champion Alison Goring in the semifinal and then beat another tough competitor in Anne Merklinger in a thrilling extra end to claim the provincial crown.

"That game was kind of our 'Oh crap' moment," admitted Bodogh. "It really boosted our confidence. It just showed that my team just had no fear. They did what I asked and there was just so much belief in each other."

The momentum from the Ontario final carried forward to Thunder Bay and the Scotties. Before the packed arena, Bodogh and her charges dominated the round-robin, posting a 10-1 record. Only two of the team's wins required the full 10 ends. The only loss came to Saskatchewan's Sherry Middaugh (then Scheirich). In their kilts, the Ontario women stood out against a sea of the bulky pants worn by the other teams. With each win, Bodogh became more flamboyant in front of the media microphones, overflowing with confidence.

With the Ontario team sitting comfortably on top of the standings, the remaining teams were in a wild scramble for the playoffs. Middaugh and Alberta's Cheryl Bernard (then Kullman) were at 7-4, followed by five teams tied at 6-5, setting up a tangle of tiebreakers for the remaining berth.

It was Team Canada that survived, earning a place in the three-versus-four match against Middaugh.

In the one-two game, Bernard faced off against Bodogh. The Alberta rink, comprised of Karen Ruus, Barb Sherrington and Judy Pendergast, had enjoyed a solid year in major events. It was a return to the pebbled ice for Bernard, who had been a dominant player in Alberta curling in the early 1990s, but took several years away from the game to start a business. Now she was back and hungry to win.

But facing off against Bodogh? That was a tall task.

"She had a great team, a talented team but Marilyn was just bigger than life and as intimidating as hell," Bernard stated. "The way she walked. I'll never forget her walking up and down the sideboards and entertaining the crowds. I was petrified and I was wondering what I was doing there. She was so confident. She could beat you almost on just her personality and her attitude."

But it was Bernard who seemed at ease in the first

Left: Cheryl Bernard is hardly through with curling. She recently skipped her Calgarybased team at the 2021 Everest Canadian Seniors Curling Championships. She also works with TSN as a broadcast analyst, and is the president and CEO of Canada's Sports Hall of Fame.

Right: Marilyn Bodogh had the personality to light up an entire arena when she appeared at the Scotties. Today, she's still close to the game, and threw out the opening rock at the 2017 Scotties in St. Catharines, Ont.

Team Ontario followed up its Scotties Tournament of Hearts win in Thunder Bay by adding the world title in Hamilton, defeating Lisa Schoeneberg of the United States in the final. playoff game, shocking the Ontario four and rolling to a 12-7 win that moved them into the final.

"That was the first game all year that we didn't have control of our emotions," Bodogh recalled. "We were just a little bit off. None of us could explain it."

While the loss came suddenly and at the worst possible moment, Bodogh wasn't worried. In a postgame interview, she reassured her fans.

"Don't worry Ontario," she said into the cameras. "We'll be all right."

And she was correct. In the semifinal against Team Canada, Ontario got back on the winning side when Laliberte hit and rolled out with her final stone to give Bodogh a 6-5 win.

That set up the rematch with Alberta and, this time, Bodogh was clearly ready and seemingly back to her confident, out-going self.

At the pre-game warm-up session, she and her Ontario teammates finished up, yielding the ice to the Albertans. As Bernard's players threw rocks up and down the ice, Bodogh walked over to where a high school band was entertaining the fans. After a short conversation with the conductor, the Ontario skip took over, guiding the band with the baton and causing the crowd to cheer and clap along with the music as the Alberta curlers paused their on-ice activities to see the cause of the commotion.

"If I'm feeling good and I'm full of confidence, I'm having fun," Bodogh said. "My nervous energy has to come out. I can't keep it in. It didn't happen every game but when it was there I was enjoying myself." The confidence was evident in the final. The Ontario team controlled the play, cracking a deuce in the second end. After giving up singles in four and five, Bodogh had a hit for four in the sixth but had to settle for three when her shooter rolled out. Still, it was enough to give them the upper hand for the remaining ends as they ran the Alberta squad out of rocks in the 10th end to claim the title with a 7-4 victory.

"I think when we beat her in the one-two game, that was almost our championship there," admitted Bernard. "They really came to play in that final. We weren't as strong as we were before. We played OK but they came out on fire and we never got any of the breaks we got in the one-versus-two game."

For Bodogh, it was the realization of her early season prediction. While the four players threw all the shots, the skip acknowledged how the fans buoyed them on in every game.

"They were great, all week," she said. "We'd played in Thunder Bay so many times at the Grand Prix and the Heart to Heart, and we had so many friends with Rick and Lorraine (Lang) and Al (Hackner) and Heather (Houston), so it felt really comfortable. It's such a great curling city."

The team got to stay in its home province for the world championship a month later, playing at Copps Coliseum in Hamilton, Ont., where it added that crown to its laurels.

MOOSE CALLS GETTING LOUDFR

Northern Ontario curlers are a force to be reckoned with on the ice these days by don Landry

HE PAST HAS BEEN GLORIOUS. THE PRESENT IS shining brightly, too.

And, with the hard work of players and coaches and the innovation of organizers, Northern Ontario curling seems well-positioned to keep the joyful sound of moose calls echoing triumphantly for years to come.

"We've got top-name teams in the adult world and we've got many coming up in the youth world," says Andrea Ronnebeck, Education Manager for the Ontario Curling Council (OCC), which includes the Northern Ontario Curling Association (NOCA).

Team Brad Jacobs, Team Krista McCarville and Team Tracy Fleury (prior to her move to a Manitoba-based team) have led the most visible charge for Northern Ontario over the past few years, with pride flowing and banners waving. There has been tour Tim Hortons. Thunder Bay's Team Krista

McCarville (above) has helped raise the profile of Tanner Hogan and his brother Jake have a team based in Kingston, Ont., but they are Northern Ontario through and through, having represented the area from their home base in Sudbury. success and, in the particular case of Saul Ste. Marie's Team Jacobs, a national men's championship and an Olympic gold medal.

However, you must also consider the youngsters in order to more completely see the entire, rosy picture and appreciate the success that Moose Country curling has been tasting over the past few years at the junior and university levels.

- Isabelle Ladouceur skipped her Sudbury-based rink to success at the World Junior qualifying event in Saskatoon last November, and the foursome is off to Sweden in March to represent Canada at the world championships.
- Two Laurentian University (Sudbury) women's teams have won national U SPORTS championships — Krista Burns skipped her foursome to a win in 2017, the first national curling title in the university's history, and Kira Brunton scored gold for Laurentian two years later.
- Brunton had previously won gold at the national Under-18 (U18) championships in 2017, making it double-gold for Northern Ontario that year, as Jake Horgan skipped his rink to a U18 title as well.
- There was more U18 gold in store in 2019, when Bella Croisier and her junior women's team topped the podium and Horgan's team took the bronze in men's.
- Horgan scored silver at the U21 national championship on two occasions, in 2016 and '18. While Tanner and brother Jake now have a team based in Kingston, Ont., they are Northern Ontario through and through, having repped the area from their home base in Sudbury.

Now you're getting the picture — Moose Country curlers are a force to be reckoned with these days.

"Before," says Burns, referencing the years previous to the emergence of Jacobs, Fleury and McCarville on the national radar, "it was like, 'You're Northern Ontario. You're kind of an underdog.' Whereas now in men's and women's it's completely different."

Burns, whose team represented Moose Country curling at the 2021 Scotties Tournament of Hearts when McCarville's Thunder Bay-based team chose not to participate, is one of the bright stars in Northern Ontario, although the 25-year-old has stepped back from the game this season in order to focus completely on her studies. (She holds a Bachelor's degree in science and a Masters in forensics, and is currently studying genetics technology at Toronto's Michener Institute.)

Top: Bella Croisier and her junior women's team topped the podium by winning Under-18 gold in 2019.

Middle: Kira Brunton scored gold for Laurentian University at the national U SPORTS championships in 2019, and previously won gold at the national Under-18 championships in 2017.

Bottom: Krista Burns skipped her Laurentian University foursome to a gold medal at the U SPORTS championship in 2017, the first national curling title in the university's history.

"But once I get settled into a career, I'm hoping to make my way back in curling," she says, adding that her wish is to do that in Northern Ontario.

In the meantime, Northern Ontario's development of young, up-and-coming curlers is in overdrive, with an eye to developing more athletes like Burns.

Jen Ferris has been Manager of Programs and Operations for the OCC for nearly eight years, and a big part of her job entails ensuring that young, hungry, talented curlers are afforded every opportunity to shine.

"Every week," Ferris says, "I'm like, who's our next Horgan? Who's our next Jacobs? Who's our next Tracy Fleury? And how do we get them there? How do we give those kids a chance?"

Although she resides in Southern Ontario and oversees development for the entire province, Ferris grew up in Sault Ste. Marie, representing Northern Ontario at the Canadian junior championship in 1995 (she was known as Jen Bolton), and she's very familiar with the passion that glows in Ontario's north.

"I think curling is just woven into the culture," she says. "We've got, I don't know, how many small communities in Northern Ontario, but they all have a curling club, right? Or most of them do."

That passion is the spark that can draw a youngster to the game.

A boy or girl can see Northern Ontario stars taking on the world's best on national TV, and perhaps they fall in love with the game and go beyond their initial slide from the hack. It's a process that needs careful attention, as well as programs that change with the times.

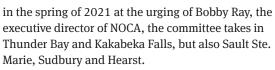

In Thunder Bay, for instance, the focus has shifted to youth curling leagues as opposed to having youngsters join one curling club in particular. Instead, players form a team and hit the pebble on a regular basis at each of the Fort William, Port Arthur, and Kakabeka Falls clubs.

"So it's a city league," says Ferris.

"They've brought them all together and they've been very successful in working together to increase the number of youth curlers in that community," the OCC's Ronnebeck says of Thunder Bay's approach, giving credit to organizers Dick Henderson and Larry Rathje for the success of the program, which takes its direction, in part, from a youth advisory council.

Beyond the Lakehead, there is a more broad-based regional Youth Advisory Committee, featuring nine young curlers between the ages of 15 and 24. Formed

"They're hoping to bolster the number of young curlers in Northwestern Ontario," says Ronnebeck, adding that one of the aims is to build on the successes of entry-level initiatives such as Little Rocks and Rocks & Rings, the travelling program that visits schools and introduces children to the sport through floor curling.

Eighteen-year-old Piper Croisier is a charter member of the Youth Advisory Committee, which gives young players a say in the direction of programs.

"I love it," says Croisier, a 2019 U18 national champion while on a team skipped by sister Bella. "It's a great way to get youth voices heard in Northern Ontario. It's a joy to work on."

"We enjoy getting their feedback," says Ferris. "A lot of it is solution-based. They have suggestions as much as they have comments or complaints."

On the business side, there is the challenge in ensuring that Northern Ontario clubs are strong. That's where Ray, who has been NOCA's executive director since June of 2020, comes in.

"My passion is with club development," he says. "Building up the clubs from the grassroots."

In encouraging club managers to consider innovative business practices, Ray aims to ensure that the financial health of Northern Ontario facilities is as powerful as possible.

"We're about 40 clubs and about 6,000 curlers in those clubs. So it's pretty good numbers," he says.

In tying together evolving youth programs with a healthier financial picture, Northern Ontario curling organizers hope to keep the momentum going, building off recent successes at the men's, women's and junior levels.

And, of course, to keep those moose calls reverberating throughout arenas all over the world.

Don Landry is a freelance columnist and broadcaster based in Toronto.

MARJ MITCHELL >>>AWARD<<<

THE INAUGURAL SCOTT TOURNAMENT OF

Hearts was held in 1982 in Mari Mitchell's home city, Regina. The organizing committee chair was Evelyn Krahn, past president of the Canadian Curling Association, and Mitchell chaired the transportation committee.

Renowned for her fierce competitive spirit and wonderful sense of humour, Mitchell was dedicated to giving back to her sport, having reaped the benefits of two appearances at the Canadian women's championship. She skipped her Saskatchewan team of Nancy Kerr, Shirley McKendry and Wendy Leach to the national title in 1980 – following it up with Canada's first women's world crown — and was runner-up in 1975. She was a winner in every sense of the word feisty, strong-willed, determined and full of confidence.

Unfortunately, there was one battle Mitchell couldn't win. In 1983, shortly after the second Scott Tournament of Hearts, she died of cancer at the age of 35.

Mitchell, however, has not been forgotten. Since 1998, the sportsmanship award at The Scott Tournament of Hearts - now the Scotties Tournament of Hearts - has been awarded in her honour as the Marj Mitchell Award.

Until Scott Paper assumed sponsorship of the Canadian Women's Curling Championship in 1982, the competition had never offered an individual sportsmanship award.

Scott Paper decided to sponsor a sportsmanship award and decided, in association with Curling Canada, that the award would be named each year in honour of an individual who exemplified the spirit of curling and had had a lasting impact on the region hosting the Hearts that year.

The award has recognized many of curling's unsung heroes, as well as many of its most outstanding athletes and builders.

2021 Scotties for their positive attitudes and strong play on the ice. St-Georges won the Marj Mitchell Sportsmanship Award, which is voted on by the players at the event.

The Tournament of Hearts sportsmanship award was re-named in honour of Marj Mitchell, above, who skipped Canada to its first women's world title in 1980.

It's appropriate that the award is now known as the Marj Mitchell Award and that its inaugural presentation took place at the 1998 Scott Tournament of Hearts in Regina, where Mitchell learned to curl, spent her curling career and contributed so much to the sport she dearly loved.
